

Knowledge Organiser

PSHE including RSE

Year 6 Spring Relationships - Respecting ourselves and others

- Within society, people don't always get along and sometimes people forget that it is other people's differences that make them unique and special. We need to show kindness and empathy.
- When a person doesn't respect the different qualities and opinions of another person or group, this can often be called discrimination.
- When a conflict gets out of hand, it can help to involve a trusted adult.
- Sometimes people disagree because our brains process information differently from each other.

Vocabulary

society	The members of a group or community..
unique	Being the only one of its kind.
discrimination	Being treated differently because of their gender, race.
conflict	A serious disagreement or argument.